

A Husband's Commitment to marriage and family

I believe God has made me as a man to be in covenant with my wife. Marriage comes from God by design and He has joined me to my wife.

I will commit, by the power of the Holy spirit at work in my life, to live up to his call of marriage as a man and be the loving leader He commands me to be.

I will take my primary role in leading, providing for, protecting and being the spiritual leader of my home.

I will commit to living out the Gospel in my marriage by bearing with and forgiving my wife when she has offended, even as Christ has done for me.

I will make developing my relationship with God my utmost priority. I will prioritize relationship with my wife above all worldly relationships, then my relationship with my children. I will not let work or entertainment take priority over my family.

I will commit my whole heart to love my wife as Christ loves his church. I will work through the struggle to learn how to do this. I will cherish and nourish her as I would myself.

I commit to live with my wife with understanding, learning all I can about her. I will learn what she needs to be a godly woman, wife and mother. I will honor her in such a way that she can be each of those things.

I will dedicate my whole heart to never let division and separation cause us to split apart. I will not entertain the thought of divorce with my wife but will always seek healing and restoration through Christ.

I recognize that I have a real enemy that will not want me to do these things. He will do everything to mar or destroy my marriage. I will resist him in the strength of God, covered in the armor He has provided for me. I will not let the enemy win.
